UNESCO's Framework for Culture and Arts Education was adopted unanimously by UNESCO Member States at the World Conference on Culture and Arts Education in Abu Dhabi in February 2024. This global commitment to culture and arts education puts access, inclusion, and equity, including in the digital environment, center stage. The Framework is a critical tool for policymakers to create sustainable futures by anchoring a cultural dimension in all education contexts and settings. Museums – as intrinsically linked to place and societies – can strengthen education relevance and expand the possibilities for inclusivity by grounding a stronger connection between learners and their communities. The workshop will shed light on how UNESCO's Framework can be implemented in practice.

Programme

- Welcoming remarks by Kristina Mandl (Head of Art, Culture and Creativity in Schools | Austrian Ministry of Education, Science and Research)
- Introduction of UNESCO's Framework by Karalyn Monteil (UNESCO): insight into the policy document, its concrete goals, and proposed measures
- Presentation by Markus Simbeni (Equalizent): "Hands up - Experience Silence"
- Presentation via Austrian Disability Council: Susanne Buchner Sabathy (BSVÖ), Jennie Schellenbacher (Wien Museum) and Sigrid Kundela (Selbsthilfe Gruppe Schädel Hirn Trauma)
